While the foregoing bequests to my said wife are absolute, and it is my intention that she shall have full power to use and dispose of all property herein willed to her, in any manner she may deem proper, it is my wish that she shall divide equally among all my children, any residue of said property or its proceeds, which may remain in her possession or under her control at the time of her death. But these expressions of my wishes as to what she shall do with said residue, of said property, or its proceeds, are to be treated as mere suggestions and shall not be in any way legally binding on her.

Witness my hand this April 8th , 1909.

Joseph Wassman.

The foregoing writing was signed by the testator Joseph Wassman, as and for his last will and testament in the presence of us, the undersigned, who, in his presence and in the presence of each other, and at his instance and request, have hereunto affixed our signatures as subscribing witnesses on this Ap[illegible], 1909.
